ABSTRACT

A method is provided for calling up actions on output devices which are controlled by a center, wherein a request is transmitted from a mobile radio device to the centre, the position of the mobile radio device is determined and available output devices are determined therefrom. A respective transaction number is displayed on the available output devices and the action is performed by inputting the transaction number on the mobile radio device or on the output device.